

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are malnourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million. In addition, the number of people who are obese has increased from 100 million to 300 million. This is a dramatic increase in the number of people who are either malnourished or obese. The number of people who are malnourished is increasing at a faster rate than the number of people who are obese.

The increase in the number of people who are malnourished is due to a number of factors. One of the main factors is the increase in the world population. The world population is increasing at a rapid rate, and this is putting a strain on the world's food supply. Another factor is the increase in the number of people who are living in poverty. People who are living in poverty are often unable to afford the food that they need to survive.

The increase in the number of people who are obese is due to a number of factors. One of the main factors is the increase in the number of people who are eating a diet that is high in calories and fat. This is often due to the fact that many people are eating fast food, which is high in calories and fat. Another factor is the decrease in the amount of physical activity that many people are doing. This is often due to the fact that many people are spending more time sitting at a desk or watching television.

The increase in the number of people who are malnourished or obese is a serious problem. It is a problem that is affecting people all over the world. It is a problem that is causing a lot of suffering and death. It is a problem that we need to do something about. We need to find ways to reduce the number of people who are malnourished or obese. We need to find ways to improve the world's food supply. We need to find ways to help people who are living in poverty. We need to find ways to encourage people to eat a healthy diet and to exercise.
